Bumper Crop

Bruno, our New Members Secretary, has been busy. In what must be a 90 year record, 12 Prospectives graduated to Full Member status at the December Committee meeting. There could have been more; one person didn't correctly identify all their Q walks, and two more applications were submitted a day too late.

The bumper crop was thanks to very high attendances at overnight Q walks in the month beforehand. Angela Barton topped the charts with 11 Prospectives, while Rod Wales and Robert Carter had exceptional numbers as well. There was not a single incident report for all the Prospectives on these trips. All passed with flying colours. A very welcome experience.

Canyon Sub-Committee

The Committee comprised of Terry, Tom and Rod met in early December. They are so well organised they actually took minutes. Terry tells me it is about all things canyoning: scheduling, equipment, training for leaders and for participants, and a leader pathway. The most important thing is SAFETY. This is a terrific development for the club which already has high standards for canyoning.

Incident Reporting for 2017

A typical year for sprains, blisters, pokes in the eye but no serious stuff at all this year. Only one visit to hospital, and a quick one at that; an "OK" and straight home. We have been lucky. There are also signs that leaders have been managing risks and first aid situations very well.

One minor incident report caught my eye. A new member on their first walk early in the year struggled so badly that they were escorted back to the start after only 3km. The same person graduated only six months later. They obviously improved heaps, learnt heaps and showed some real determination. It's great to see this. We have quite a few cases where people have been transformed by the challenges of bushwalking and are entitled to a quiet but deep sense of achievement.

Ian Wolfe Versus Sydney Bush Walkers

SBW received a summons issued by Somerville Legal of North Sydney on behalf of ex-President Ian Wolfe to appear in the Supreme Court on 12 December.

At the hearing, the judge issued various orders for evidence etc and for a mid-March hearing in the Supreme Court. Amongst the orders was a requirement for Mr Wolfe to clarify the scope of the dispute.

So, this long running, tiresome and sorry saga that began with a disagreement over a club history continues. Numerous people have tried numerous approaches but nothing has worked. Some people say it has been going on for four years, others say six. The subject has consumed masses of Committee time for five successive Committees and even occupied a full hour at the 2016 AGM. Fortunately somehow or other the club has flourished in the shadow of this huge distraction. We have record levels of membership and a great walks program. We are not going under; SBW is getting stronger.

The club owes special thanks to Robert Carter who through lengthy and painstaking discussions with the agent and the insurer, finally convinced them to grant the club defence costs in the event of a legal battle. We are covered to defend the club, but not for initiating action. This limits our costs to an excess of $5000. But even more important, it gave us access to excellent lawyers. We would have been in big, big trouble if we had to fund this case with no insurance cover, without experienced representation (perhaps with none at all), and with a huge personal cost in stress and time for a few Committee members.

I hope we can get a little group of people together to help us with all the legal work. The President and the Secretary can't handle all the work on their own and run the club at the same time. Unfortunately, it is not simply a case of handing it to the lawyers and wiping our hands. A lot of input from the club is required.

As far as I can tell, this is the first time the club has been in court. Another 90 year old record has been broken (see Bumper Crop above), but not a record we wanted.

Social Secretary

Here I go again. One last call for a Social Secretary before the 2018 social program is cancelled. Maybe people don't understand that it is not a huge job. It is an off-Committee position - no need to attend meetings. There are ten talks and two parties each year. They are always held at KNC. The rooms are booked by someone else (me at the moment). People frequently offer to give talks. When they don't, just look up the Newsletter for interesting walk reports - especially walks of one week or more duration - and call the leader. The Communications Secretary does the promotion. You need to buy and layout snacks and drinks for the night. There is an established procedure for reimbursement. You get to meet and mix with the most social people in the club!

Website

Linda Groom gave Alexa and myself a tour of the brand new Canberra Bushwalking Club website in early November. Linda has generously offered free of charge the right to clone the CBC site and re-configure it to meet our requirements. We are convinced this is an excellent model to piggyback on. A modern design, suited to mobiles, with slots for a SBW payment gateway. Plus, a very interesting almost revolutionary way of managing the walks program through the website.

Alexa, I and the members secretaries Bruno and Thuy are currently working through a specification for the membership requirements. These are the backbone of the site. The plan is to submit the requirements to the developers soon for a quote. The walks program side can wait until the membership component is proven to work. A wider group of people will be needed to consult on how to configure the walks component for SBW purposes.

Bits and Pieces

A fantastic Advance Notices program for 2018! I wonder if I can go on the Okinawa trip?

Did you see the spectacular video produced by drones (with permission from National Parks) used on Caro's trip to the 4 Heads of the walkers from above and beyond the cliff walls?

See you on the track,

Who's Walking Where

In September and October, Rachel Grindlay and Tom Brennan spent three weeks walking and canyoning in Utah and Arizona. They visited the area around Zion, Escalante, San Rafael Swell, Arches NP, Robbers Root, Cedar Mesa and Grand Canyon. Here is a selection of their photos.

A Colo River Walk

11-12 Nov: Rachel Grindlay. Photos by Tom Brennan.

The weekend didn't get off to the best start when at 7:45am only 5 of the 8 walkers were at North Richmond – and that was for a 7:30am meeting for a 7:45am sharp departure. Fortunately I was feeling relatively relaxed about our schedule so we waited until 8am when the last of the group arrived. Quickly piling into 2 cars instead of 5 we were soon at Mountain Lagoon and on the track.

If anyone hadn't heard Darryl say he wasn't well it was soon obvious as he tried to avoid coughing up his lungs every few steps. We had morning tea just shy of the really excellent lookout on Mailes Ridge overlooking the Colo River. Despite Darryl's optimism at walking off his flu, post-morning tea with increasing difficulty in breathing, it seemed unlikely. After a group discussion Tom, Inga & Darryl turned around and the remaining 5 of us continued on.

The Colo Meroo track meanders around a fair bit and is not that easy to follow but eventually we got to the end of the ridge and down the steep descent. We enjoyed lunch on the grass at Colo Meroo and mused as to why there was a need to have men's and women's pit toilets (why not just 2 unisex ones?). After lunch it was time to hit the river. The section between Colo Meroo and Townsend Bend was shallow with many sand banks and we made good progress. The water was very warm. Clive relished his first experience of walking with a pack in a river by seeking out the deeper sections of water, and was somewhat disappointed that the "Colo quicksand" didn't make an appearance. There was still no sign of Tom when we stopped for a swim mid-afternoon. We made camp on a large sand bank on the bend, enjoying the opportunity to spread out so there was no chance of any snorers keeping the rest of the party awake!

Tom appeared about 5pm having made sure Darryl and Inga had got back to the easy to follow section of track. He mentioned we might be back up to 8 for the evening as he had met 2 other walkers, Olga and Natalia, on his way down to Colo Meroo. They were planning the same route as us and they were both SBW members. As it turned out we didn't end up seeing them until the next morning so I couldn't claim a full complement that night. We had a convivial happy hour, and a pleasant evening. We were lulled (!?) to sleep by the raucous calls of the koalas in the surrounding bush. Sadly we didn't see any, but there were a lot of vocals. The next morning was also noisy - a vibrant dawn chorus with a cacophony of birds revelling in the beautiful day breaking.

Tom was the only one who had walked this section of the Colo before and he assured us the water level was fairly low. This made the walking up to Tootie Creek much easier as passing the rapids was relatively straight forward. There were still plenty of sections where we were wading waist deep, or swimming for those who couldn't be bothered trying to find routes around even deeper sections. Emilie's faith in her balance was impressive as she managed to keep her rather expensive camera dry by simply holding it above the water, or balanced on her head as she swam neck deep, not a dry bag in sight! I'm pleased to report the camera survived.

We caught up with Olga and Natalia at Tootie Creek. They were keen to combine with us to find the T3 track and our exit. We didn't start on the official track but it was definitely a route that had been used, and when we finally hit a cairn it was above a dirty erosion gully that I wouldn't have wanted to walk up. At the first saddle on the ridge we found the main track, along with regular blue splotches on the trees. We took an early lunch at the spectacular look out above the Colo. Olga & Natalia decided to push on now confident of the following the rest of the route out.

Post lunch we had a straight-forward walk up the rest of the T3 track then an easy 5km fire trail bash back to the cars. The pressing problem was what to do about transport. Darryl and Inga had left yesterday which meant we had 6 of us and one car at the car park. We had come up with various options to get us all back to North Richmond which would have worked but we were pretty happy when rounding a corner on the fire trail we saw Olga and Natalia again. We got back to the car park at pretty much the same time and they were very happy to provide a lift so that solved the transport problem! Five of us finished off the day at Pie in the Sky with apple pie and ice cream. An excellent weekend with great company.

To get to the BBQ we used a combination of bush tracks and some road walking, much of the walking being along the Great North Walk from Hunters Hill to De Burghs Bridge. 28 Oct - 19 Nov 2017 After a short bus trip from Pokhara the walk started at Phedi. The next couple of days were cloudy and this prevented full appreciation of the start of the approach to Annapurna Base Camp (ABC). Thereafter the weather was clear, at least in the mornings. As we made our way up the valley of the Modi Khola towards ABC the peaks of Annapurna South (7219m) and Hiun Chuli (6434m) towered above, soon to be overtaken by the spectacular sight of the "fishtail mountain", the sacred Machhapuchhre (6997m). Towards Machhapuchhre Base Camp the valley was dominated by the huge amphitheatre of the East and West Annapurna Glacier, topped by Ganggapurna (7454m) and Annapurna III (7555m). We rounded the corner of the Annapurna Sanctuary and then proceeded to ABC, located on the edge of the huge South Annapurna Glacier. We stayed the night here surrounded by Annapurna I (8091m, world's tenth highest mountain), Glacier Dome (7069m), Annapurna South, Fang (7647m) and many others. From there we had to retrace our steps to Chhomrong before heading to Khopra Ridge via Tadapani and Bayali. Khopra Ridge provides unsurpassed views of Dhaulagiri (8167m, world's seventh highest mountain). On an optional day walk from our Khopra Ridge accommodation to Barahi Lake (4600m) Alan discovered that climbing an extra 140m provided the best views of the whole trek - the whole southwest face of Annapurna I opposite Dhaulagiri across the world's deepest valley. From here we headed for Poon Hill for yet more spectacular views of Dhaulagiri, Annapurna I, Annapurna South, Hiun Chuli, Machhapuchhre and others all taken in from the one point at sunset and sunrise. From there it was all downhill to Nayapul and our bus back to Pokhara after 16 days of unrivalled trekking. This trek took in three destinations (ABC, Khopra Ridge and Poon Hill) that are promoted as separate targets in their own right and there are few if any treks where one can get so close to so many massive mountains for so little effort and at relatively modest altitudes. Photos are of ABC and Annapurna I and Dhaulagiri.	Annapurna Sanctuary Nepal	Kenn Clacher Neil Hickson Lucy Keatinge Virginia Riley Sally Reynolds Michele Powell Owen Kimberley Kath Mullane Marella Hogan Alan Osland Patricia Huang Wayne Gardner Robert Betos

4 Nov 2017 Mt Lockyer Yengo NP Standing in for Roy Jamieson and armed with his sketch map and notes, finding the cave was straightforward, and what incredible artworks (the logbook showed fairly frequent visitors). Then for more recent history along the Old Great North Road, via Circuit Flat Bridge built ca 1831 by convict labour. Up to Mt Lockyer for extensive views, we decided we could just about make out Mt Yengo in the low cloud. We found a beaut overhang along the southwestern base of the wall which made for a great lunch spot. 4 Nov 2017 Tiger Snake Canyon Wollemi NP On the drive up the Bells Line of Road the rain kept coming down; sometimes pretty heavy, sometimes just a drizzle. It didn't look good. Meeting up at Clarence there was only one drop out - all the rest were keen to give it a go. A hapless motorist that had attempted to launch her car up an embankment next to the Glowworm tunnel road delayed us for 40" or so (the motorist was uninjured, the car was very sad), by the time we started walking (about 10!) the skies had cleared and stayed that way nearly all day - just needing a raincoat for a couple of 5" drizzle spats. Yet again - a great day despite a pretty dodgy forecast. There were four in the group with little or no canyon experience. There were a few rounds of "how do I thread the rope through here?", but apart from that they all handled it like seasoned pros. The Tiger Snake apparently had the day off, so not even any shrieks about snakes. We finished Tiger Snake and were back on the ridge at 3:30. The proposal to do Crooked Crevice was discussed and adopted. I'm so glad. The chatter and hysterics as they squeezed and maneuvered through the second abseil and then through the crevice was priceless. Great fun. The 3 lucky ones in the group made it back to Barcoo camp by 7pm, others had a much longer drive. A great day with a great group. They'll brighten any canyon trip.	Rod Wales Helen Zimmerman Kavita Joshi Neil Soutar Jenny Lian P Members Lee-Anne Nel Ewelina Przbyaszewski

5 Nov 2017	Contradiction Canyon exit exploratory	Wollemi NP	Rod Wales Neil Soutar Daryll Sullings It rained a lot overnight and the morning brought frequent misty rain and drizzle spats. The thought of walking off track and on foot pads with lots of overhanging, saturated bush just wasn't getting the enthusiasm level up. The rain let up for a while before our planned departure and we decided to give it a go. After a hundred meters or so through the bush the outcome was as predicted - saturated from the waist down and it stayed that way for a few hours. The foot pad out to Galah Canyon was much more well defined than I remember - there's obviously been more people doing the canyon. The 4.1 km 'on track' to where you veer sharply to the east to drop into Galah took an hour - and had been very pleasant: some waratahs brightening up the grey day, just starting to get beyond their prime and lots of birds out chirping in the damp overcast conditions - oh to have a smidgen of Ted Nixon's knowledge; they were very shy, some of them might have been King Parrots. The next 2.3 km out to the top of the spur at GR506197 took an hour and a half, no major navigational challenges, but lots of patches of thick bush. We found a pagoda with a fantastic view to the east, out over the spur and down to the outfall of Contradiction Canyon into Rocky Creek. An absolutely fantastic, rugged view (unfortunately the photograph doesn't capture the grandeur). The route in front of us looked much tougher than what we had covered and the skies were looking pretty sinister. The optimistic projection was that if we continued to our objective the earliest we would be back at the cars would be 6pm and it looked likely that we'd face a few challenges. The decision was made: a leisurely lunch to soak up the view and then go back and check out the waratahs and King Parrots. Good call. A very pleasant way to spend a damp Sunday, our efforts amply rewarded by a fantastic view that very few would get the privilege of seeing.

However, after an hour or so, during which we did some undercover practice, the rain cleared up, and we were able to move out to the cliffs. Alex led us from Pennant Hills Park back to the junction of the GNW via Cheltham and Whale Rock with a high expectation of spotting some Powerful Owls - unfortunately, sightings on the night were not to be despite Alex having spotted them earlier in the day. ### Help needed

Remember to please give leaders plenty of notice if you need to pull out of a walk, so that other members can have the opportunity to take your place.

We continually need to expand our pool of leaders, so if you haven't put on a walk before, think about what you might put on the Spring Program. Maybe you have a favourite walk near Sydney that you are familiar with? Just one walk is all we are looking for.

11 Nov 2017 Manly to Watsons Bay Sydney Harbour Foreshore A nice sunny day with crystal clear skies for this long (46km) but spectacular walk around Sydney Harbour. We were a little late arriving at Manly due to mechanical problems with the ferry from Circular Quay however we got underway around 7.45 am and certainly made up for it with a cracking pace of 5.0km/hr maintained throughout. We took advantage of a (high) low tide and walked the rock platforms from Spit to Balmoral just for a little excitement and to cool off our feet which was unintentional. There were minimal stops throughout due to the distance however we did take some time to stop and say hello to Little Blue Walker who was out on the tracks around Taronga Zoo. Despite tired legs and sore feet we decided on the long way around the Opera House to see the seal before heading out through the eastern suburbs to finally arrive at Watsons Bay at 6.05 pm where celebratory refreshments were had at the Watsons Bay Hotel! A great day out and great achievement for the walking group with plenty of tired and sore bodies at the end. 11 Nov 2017 Old Man Canyon Blue Mountains NP Old man canyon is a beautiful but short canyon section, with a long walk. The party of 6 got back to Cathedral Reserve after 10 hours. The entry point wasn't too scrubby by using a different route. We avoided wet feet as we crossed Wollangambe river and stayed dry until we reached the creek. As a precaution, we turned a tape into a harness on the 2nd rope assisted descent; but we learnt hand-over-hand was sufficient, as written on the guide. The exit point had no hiccups and we got back before sunset and set up to camp for the night.		Rod Wales Catherine Omal Margaret St.Hill Simon Karantonis Srinivas Gowda Visitor Garth McLachlan

Two members dropped out due to change in route to 'Loftus to Bundeena'. Loftus to Bundeena route is quiet diverse with various views and terrain. Small party of 5 and it was a beautiful day with some hidden views for lunch and snacks. We stopped near waterfall for lunch and soaked our feet in the nice warm water and had morning tea next to a lake. It turned out to be a great day with awesome company of these people and leader would love to walk with them again in future.		Kavita Joshi Tim Yewdall Barbara Gray Nigel Wingate P Member Paul Hammond

12 Nov 2017 4 Norse Heads Blue Mountains NP A perfect weather day had us setting off from the cars on Vic Falls Rd at 9am and heading along the firetrail as it slowly became single track and finally foot-pad towards Asgard Head. Scrambling up on to Asgard Head, with it's dramatic views down over Mt Victoria Falls and the mighty Grose Valley, was a good sign for the day to come. It was first morning tea and the first outings for Prospective Members Blackie, Bambi and Sparkie... Drones used with permission from National Parks. Onwards, meant backtrack #1 and then dropping down to McKenzie Mine and Brick Kiln for some touches of the old mining history in the region. It looks like many before us have hoped for a shortcut north across to Thor Head, alas, the track peters out shortly after the kiln and as the trip was listed as M212, with no E... I felt it best to return for backtrack #2 to the main drag for 150m, before taking the single track to Thor Head and epic viewstop, 2nd morning tea and another air-traffic-control for our aerial prospectives. Such great views and lazy feel to the day, led to lunch (1st lunch) being taken here as well, before dragging ourselves away for backtrack #3 to the main drag once again, before heading NW through Asgard Swamp. Getting carried away with following the single track (after off-track), it was too easy to find ourselves at 'Fail-halla' Head... not quite Valhalla Head and on the NW corner of this protrusion of the escarpment. Either way, we enjoyed this spot, some sleeping, some flying, and afternoon tea #1. With Ikara Head (not a Norse word, but aboriginal), teasingly close, I decided to skirt around the western side of the cliff-top until we found a descent creek to drop us into the deep gully between Ikara and Failhalla... thereby avoiding backtrack #4. Instead we wandered down a delightful swamp gully NW until rounding to the W yet again to cross the main gully creek. We passed a couple of Katoomba locals on a day walk, crossed the creek (filling up water), before ascending a rough track (climbers access) up a heavily ferned gully at 477845, which led us up to the top of the ridge and bursting out onto the single track on the top. All that was left, was to head N out to Ikara Head for afternoon tea #2 and snoozing, view taking and trying to drag ourselves away... for backtrack #4 on the single track, past where we ascended earlier and then the 3+km S back to the Vic Falls Rd. A great day out, that kept "just" to being M212... although there was discussion about that at the IvanHOE beer garden afterwards!	Blue Mountains NP Caro Ryan Margot Bull Mandy Creighton Lisa Sheldon Antoine Yersin Isabel Yersin Yoon Lee Jon Bell P Members Rafael Chemre Monique Olgers "Blackie" "Bambi" "Sparkie"

12 Nov 2017 Serendipity Canyon Wollemi NP Serendipity means 'pleasant surprise' and even for seasoned canyoners, this delightful and popular canyon did not disappoint. The beauty of the ferns, creek walk and enjoyable abseils together with the wonderful company made for an excellent trip. Wet suits are recommended, as the first timer, Alex discovered. The water was cold, so there is no prize for guessing who went shopping next week. The group completed the 6 abseils, we all piked on the jump. A few of the abseil starts were tricky for beginners, but they were all negotiated well, thanks to Rod's guidance and his very capable assistant Srinivas. The abseils also provided magic opportunities for photos, thanks to Stanley for acting as a professional photographer on the day. Great lunch spot on a huge slab at the end of the canyon before a steep walk back up to the camp area concluded the day. 12 Nov 2017 After posting short notice activity, I received fourteen responses including ten prospective and two full members from SBW, and two visitors. Six walkers including one full, four prospective members and one visitor dropped out prior to walk days due to personal reasons. Nine of us made a good size of party and gathered in Leura public school at 8:00 AM, and then we drove two cars to Lockley Pylon trackhead at Mount Hay Road. We started walk at 8:40 AM along Lockley Pylon Track, had the first morning tea at Da Faur Head at 10:20 AM (10 minutes), walked down and crossed Grose River and reached Blue Gum at 11:00 AM. After 10 minutes break and we then climbed to Perrys Lookdown and reached at campground at 12:20 PM. We had 30 minutes lunch break at campground. While returning, we swam in Grose River for 30 minutes. We reached Du Faur Head at about 15:30 PM and had 15 minutes short break. It took us other 1 hour 30 minutes to the car park of trackhead at Mount Hay Road. We walked about 20 KM with 1457 meters ascent and 1455 meters descent. All prospective members completed walk very well and enjoyed very much. After walk all of us headed to Grand View Hotel at Wentworth Falls for cold drinking and some of us had dinner too. After then five of us went to Lincoln Rock for sunset. It is big day for all of us. 14 Nov 2017 Wahroonga to Berowra Yet another nice day for a mid-week walk along this shady route. Following our initial walk through the backstreets of Wahroonga we entered the bush emerging at Bobbin Head and Apple Tree Bay before completing at Berowra Station where a few of us headed for a well-deserved ale! A highlight was seeing four wallabies along various points of the track – hopefully the native wildlife is on the increase throughout the national park.	Ku-ring-gai Chase NP	Robert Carter Steve Watson Anna Wells Gordon Jagger Bruce Worthington Margaret Rozea Jim Close
16 Nov 2017 Willoughby Wanderings Although the leader was unacceptably late, we still managed to set off not long after 7pm. We decided to mix things up tonight with the inclusion of a few new tracks, albeit not too different from the usual circuit. Although this walk is a combination of bush tracks and road walking it is still quite a peaceful circuit given how close we are to the Sydney CBD. A few of us stopped to admire a tawny frog mouth owl on-route.	Willoughby	Genevieve Savill Tracy Edwards Phillip Worledge Jenny Stephens Belinda Smith P Members Henrik Kristensen Jennifer Miles-Kristensen Mark Thieben
18 Nov 2017 Breakfast Creek Canyon Driving up to the mountains on a showery Sat morning our optimistic leader told us in the past how it is often clear by the time we all meet and are ready to depart the cars. It wasn't this time ... but given the forecast was for only a few showers and maybe a little rain between 12 and 6 pm, it was deemed soggy but safe and the hardy bunch set off. After a little more than an hour on tracks then through the scrub, the first scramble and abseil for some was accomplished, taking us into the canyon proper. We had transitioned from scrub and forest to that other canyon world of sandstone overhangs, ferns, moss and a babbling stream. Due our number the group was split to allow Rod and Neil to more efficiently guide us along the creek without the need to wait extended periods at each drop. This saved us from the shivers - thanks guys! We moved through this beautiful canyon down 3 more abseils, after which we arrived at a well deserved lunch spot under a small over hang. The group then walked and waded up the wonderful Rocky Creek to the exit route. A quick change out of the wetsuits, cleaning sand out of socks and shoes, then up a fairly slippery gully under giant tree ferns to our final challenge - a simple but fairly exposed rock face. Working as a team we all managed to scale this final part and it was then only a trudge back to the cars in the rain. Although it was wet for a lot of the day the enthusiasm of the group was not dampened and we need to thank Rod for organising the trip and leading us on the day, ably assisted by Neil and Srini. Written by John Fuller on behalf of Rod Wales.	Wollemi NP	Rod Wales Helen Zimmerman Neil Soutar Jo Daly Srinivas Gowda John Fuller Damon de Costa Paul O'Callaghan Kavita Joshi Patrick Lorrimer P Member Rob Thomas

18 Nov 2017 Dire weather reports put no one off except Angela Barton who, living in the area, came to the start and politely withdrew in person on the grounds that it had rained all night. Angela's warnings proved accurate when the rain set in again around 12.30 and we cut short the trip. But not before we had a magical run through the pretty Brook. Dozens of yabbies. Henry demonstrated previous experience with catching Qld yabbies. picking up a few monsters for our viewing, before carefully putting them back. We also did a very exciting little 100 metre section of Better Offer canyon, requiring a tape, before our head explorer Petros located an ideal overhang for lunch. Then it began to tumble down. We high tailed for the cars, omitting Dalpura Head and other adventures. We will have to do another trip to the area on a dry day.	Birrabang Brook Blue Mountains NP	John Kennett Alexa Bullen Petros Nikoloudis Michelle Rose Wilhelmina von Bullen David Angell Suzanne Gapps P Members Joan Ho Baskaran Subramani Henry Lacina
18 - 19 Nov 2017 We headed off into some overcast weather and an ominous forecast but got only briefly rained upon and essentially had a dry, if muggy, day. We elected to walk up Shark's head ridge to the Lost World lookout, and sat in the cave while one of the showers passed over. The descent into the beautiful campsite was straightforward and the wood was sufficiently dry to have a fire. Sunday was overcast but cleared. We did the bushbashing at the beginning of the day and then had a straightforward walk out via Bunyan's lookout. Congratulations to Kevin Reeves, Yoon Jung Kang and Isabella Clark for successfully completing their overnight Q walk.	Kanuka Brook - Fairy Campsite Blue Mountains NP	Kelvin Russell P Members Isabella Clark Kevin Reeves Yoon Jung Kang

The Sustainability Corner

The NSW container deposit scheme started on 1 December. Check out <http://www.returnandearn.org.au/> for eligible containers and to find your nearest collection point.

Meanwhile what about bringing your own reusable plate, cutlery and drink container (glass, cup or other) to the club's social nights. These are items we bring on walks in remote bush locations so it should not be too much of an inconvenience to bring them to Kirribilli.

Megalong Legstretcher

Blue Mountains NP

Andrew Vilder

Four of us set out on a day predicted to be coolish and clear, however turned out quite warm. We were a small, fit group so managed to stay above the aimed for 5km/h moving average, although we also had plenty of restful short breaks and two lunches! Beautiful scenery as always in the Megalong Valley and was great to see it looking much greener after the spring rains. Stunning views from Mount Debert and Clear Hill, before the long slog homewards along Narrow Neck. Ended up doing a GPS measured 39.6km, by 5.30pm arrived back to Katoomba Oval, and rounded off the day with a wonderful meal and drinks at the Family Inn. Thanks to Jenny, Keith and John for your terrific company! Would have no doubt had many more happy participants, if my advertised walk on the Integrated Programme had not morphed into a well-documented two day overnight packwalk to Jenolan Caves!

Donkey Mountain

Gardens of Stone NP

Jon Bell

A sunny weekend for us to take in the canyons, pagodas, slots and views of Donkey Mountain with barely a sign of the forecast storms.

With 5-6 litres of water each (some characters carrying 2-3L of wine on top of that!) it was a warm walk up the hill but wasn't long before overnight gear was dropped.

Everyone was up for giving some tricky slot-work and harder scrambles a go which added to the weekend. Special mentions going to Jo for putting on the most creative slot-work in the end of Titanic Canyon and to the happy hour efforts of everyone, but especially Damon, Tom and Rachel. Great group, special place.

Whilst learning about the science and suggestions from Bushwalking NSW regarding minimal impact bushwalking, we enjoyed each of the lookouts, creek walking and paddling in the rock pools due to the unusually hot morning.
